PRESIDENT'S REPORT

Well I'm back from holidays and what a disasterous start to the year we have had. While I was away the grounds flooded yet again and training had to be moved. Many thanks to the kind donation of a fridge for the Canteen must go to Kathy and John Taylor. As you will have noticed a couple of trees came down and thanks to Ray Millard and his brother-in-law for taking time off work and giving Victor a hand to clean it up. I believe it fell on the free run area so for this I am very grateful as well. Yet again we were lucky as the long weekend the free run area was flooded yet again. I think maybe we should have put a pool in there instead.

Well that's is about all from me, just remember to see Tina if you can help out with the Agility Trial or help out in the Canteen as our Canteen Manager is having hip replacement surgery so will require some help in there. Thanks to those who have put their name down already to help out.

Jim Ball - President

AGILITY NEWS

It is so good to be back on our own grounds again after relocating so often and great to be able to use our equipment again. Fortunately most of it came through the flooding relatively unscathed and with the help of an enthusiastic band of cleaners it was ready for us to use.

This past weekend was the long weekend and many of our Agility Triallers were out and about making the most of the beautiful weather at both Ballarat and Warrnambool. I haven't heard many results from those at the Ballarat trial, but I did hear that Janelle and Mason did very well. Congratulations to all those who had a successful weekend, whether it be through the gaining of Passes and Titles or the achievement of the stepping stones leading to the Passes. I'm sure you all enjoyed the camaraderie that playing with our dogs brings.

Unlike most of our other Geelong Triallers who set off to Ballarat, I decided to take Star to Warrnambool where the Warrnambool Dog Club offered both Obedience and Agility Trials over the long weekend. Unfortunately, half Victoria seemed to be in Warrnambool for one thing or another and accommodation for people travelling with dogs was scarce. As a result I shared a tent with my two Border Collies for three nights – a good way to test the friendship, especially when one of the dogs had an upset stomach and needed frequent nocturnal trips to the off lead area. The things we go through for our dogs!

Nevertheless it was a great two days' Trialling and Star and her mate, Remy (owned by Gleny's Murray), came home with a ribbon each.

Remy and Star with some of the spoils from their weekend away at Warrnambool.

REPORTS      REPORTS      REPORTS      REPORTS

Star's was for 3rd place in Excellent Jumping and Remy's was for 1st place in Novice Agility. Congratulations to both these special dogs.

Our own Agility and Jumping trial, run by Geelong Obedience Dog Club, is fast approaching and is a wonderful way of seeing what agility is all about. We'd love to see you there, especially if you can help out for an hour or two. The Trials will take place at our grounds on Saturday and Sunday, 9th and 10th April.

Good luck to those trialling at Geelong, Leopold, Altona and Ballarat during April.

Library News

BOOK REVIEWS - INTER-LIBRARY LOANS.

Library Link [Not available thru Swift Consortium] [Available Amazon ebooks for Kindle]

Arden, Andrea, Dog - friendly dog training, illustrations by Tracy Dockray - 2nd. ed.

Wiley Publishing Inc: New Jersey [USA], 2007.

This profusely illustrated book with its clear instructions and pertinent colour sketches is an invaluable read for the novice owner.

Arden's philosophy is to focus on the good behaviour. "After all, there is a rather short list of right behaviours but an almost endless list of wrong ones"[Quote]

Chapter 1: What is Dog Friendly Dog Training? is a very clever introduction to Operant Conditioning and Positive Reinforcement.

An hilarious illustration of the trainer dragging an aggro dolphin by a correction chain says it all about - "Physically prompting the behaviour." [Quote] After 6 sections of introductory information the novice is now in the position to start training. The lessons proceed on the foundation that has been laid. A clever and effective teaching ploy.

Chapter 7: Basic Manners Easy to follow text enhanced by clear illustrations. Using visuals [thumbnail sketches] rather than words to teach 'The Six Position Changes' makes for a great lesson. The Resource Guide is comprehensive, well researched. Web-sites applicable to this work, but also extend the ideas and concepts presented. An excellent browse after an informative and entertaining read. Visit her website: www.AndreaArden.com

Donaldson, Jean. Train your dog like a pro. Includes 2hr30min DVD

Wiley Publishing Inc: New Jersey USA, 2010

The DVD was not available. It is an integral part of the text message. It is a credit to the communication skills of the author that the reader was able to proceed successfully without it.

Donaldson's focus is on the process of training rather than being rewarded by its outcomes. The introduction functions as a spring board to understanding Train Your Dog Like a Pro. It introduces vocabulary, outlines philosophy, explains the structure of the text. It provides the reader with a clear understanding of the training process that follows.

Clear line drawings enhance instructions. The reader is stimulated and challenged by material in the grey boxes. He is asked questions, given advice and reminders and challenged to clarify what he is doing. The grids indicate when it is time to review, consolidate what has been learned, or to move forward. The grids also record problems and solutions.

Jean Donaldson has created a workbook for most levels of training experience. Her step-by-step approach lays the foundations for positive outcomes. It does not encompass short cuts. Not an easy read - but well worth the effort. An internationally respected author who presents training as it really is. Hard work - but enormously, personally enriching.

Both reviews have been submitted to their respective authors for discussion. Andrea's response was delightful: "Hi Robyn, Woofs of thanks. Andrea." Robyn Youl - Librarian

Warrnambool Obedience Trial

Four of us went on the 11th & 12th of March. The Saturday was a beautiful day and we had lots of fun. Sunday started nice until the fog rolled in and then we lost the dogs. Still had fun From the four Club Members

GEELONG MEMBERS AND GEELONG MEMBER JUDGE ANNE MACRAE AT BALLARAT NADAC TRIAL AUSTRALIA DAY WEEKEND

The weekend of the 12-13th March was the second NADAC Agility Trial for 2011. This trial was held at Victoria Park, Ballarat. With 12 events over two days it certainly is a busy weekend. At NADAC Trial's, there is a stewards roster so there is always plenty to help out with. Before you know it the weekend is over. This event saw a huge turn out from the Geelong Members and there was lots of success from all levels. It always seems such a long time between trials so it always good to catch up with 2 and 4 legged friends from far and wide. A few people stayed in Ballarat at the Pet Friendly accommodation Shady Acres Caravan Park, some travelled both days and others came for one day. Congratulations to all that competed.

Dogs Soul

Every dog must have a soul, somewhere deep inside
 Where all his hurts and grievances are buried with his pride.
 Where he decides the good and bad, the wrong way from the right,
 And where his judgement carefully is hidden from our sight.

A dog must have a secret place, where every thought abides,
 A sort of close acquaintance that he trusts in and confides.
 And when accused unjustly for himself, He cannot speak,
 Rebuked, He finds within his soul, the comfort he must seek.

He'll love, tho' he is unloved, and he'll serve tho' badly used,
 And one kind word will wipe away the times when he's abused.
 Altho' his heart may break in two, his love will still be whole,
 Because God gave to every dog an understanding Soul!

The One-Week Attention "Fix"

Get your dog to focus on YOU!

© Stacy Braslau-Schneck, CPDT

Does your dog lose all focus on you in a training class? Does she forget you exist when you go to the dog park? Is she more interested in meeting other dogs or other people than in paying attention to you? Spend a few minutes each day for a week to build a solid foundation of attention.

If you take the time to do these exercises you will greatly improve your dog's ability to focus on you and respond to your commands in a class situation or other distractions, including being around other dogs.

Day One

Pick a marker word to use as a clicker. The marker will mark the moment the dog achieves the goal you've set, and promises the dog a great reward. You can of course use a clicker but you will be doing a lot of opportunistic training, and it will be helpful to have a word or sound like "Yes!" or "Good!" to have handy. Remember, the marker is not in itself praise (you'll want to praise your dog, too!), but it is the sound of payoff to your dog.

Charge up your marker by saying it and immediately after giving the dog a treat. Make sure that the marker comes first, and then the treat.

Find a non-distracting environment - your home kitchen or living room (not the dog park or class room!). Watch your dog's eyes. Whenever your dog looks at you, click or say your marker word, and give your dog a treat. Don't do anything special to get your dog's attention - just wait for it and capture it. Do this throughout the day.

In addition to noticing your dog's attention to you throughout the day, do some rapid rounds of rewarding eye contact. For one minute, click or mark and treat every time your dog looks at you - as many times as you possibly can in one minute. Repeat this a few times. Now play "The Eye Contact Game": hold some treats in your hand and hold your hand out to one side. Don't say anything to get your dog's attention; just wait patiently while your dog stares at the treats to tries to get them (just hold your hand closed). The moment the dog tears his eyes off of the hand with the treats and looks at your face instead, click and treat!

By the end of this day, you should have marked and rewarded your dog for looking at you one hundred times or more!

Day Two

If you can predict that your dog will look at you, say your dog's name first. When she looks at you, click or mark and treat. If you guessed wrong, and your dog didn't look at you after you've said her name, you've set yourself back a tiny step. Don't assume that the dog understands the relatively sophisticated concept of an individual's name. You will be teaching the dog that hearing her name is an opportunity to get a reward if she chooses the right action - looking at you.

If she didn't look at you, immediately go back to rewarding her for looking at you, as many times as you can in a minute. Now you can probably be better at predicting when the next eye contact will come - say the dog's name first. Continue to notice any time your dog looks at you during the day. Mark and reward each time. Try to have 100 successful sequences of "Dog's Name" + look at you + mark & treat.

Day Three

Go to a place that is interesting and potential distracting for your dog - a dog park, a pet store. Do NOT go in yet! Move away from where the interesting action is - far enough that the dog is no longer entirely focused on the action. Stop some distance away - up to a block away - and wait. Wait for your dog to look at you. When she does, mark it, treat it, and celebrate! Is she still looking at you? Mark and treat it again. Do your one-minute round of rewarding eye-contact. If it's predictable, put the dog's name on it. Why are you waiting and not trying to get the dog's attention? Because you want the dog to be able to look at you on her own, without you having to do all the work up front. Patience will pay off!

For safety's sake, and for control, your dog should be on leash. But your goal is to get the dog to look at you even when there is no leash, so try not to use the leash to get her attention. You want the cue to look at you to be her name, not a tug on her collar. If you have a hard time handling leash, clicker, and treats, or keeping your hands from tugging, drop the leash to the ground and step on the handle. Throughout the day, make sure that you mark and reward each time your dog looks at you.

Day Four

Go back to your exciting place and go to the distance you were successful at before. Do one minute of rewarding attention. Are you rewarding as many sequences of the dog looking at you and you clicking and treating as you could at home, with fewer distractions around? If so, move a few feet closer to the interesting action, and do another minute of rewards. When you can predict that the dog will look at you, say her name just before she does.

Every time you say the dog's name and she looks at you and you reward her, you're making headway, moving forward towards your goal, gaining points for your team! Every time you guess wrong and say the dog's name but she doesn't look at you, you're losing ground, losing points. Dogs don't learn commands the way we do. Studies show that dogs need to hear a command paired with the action that is rewarded 30-40 times before they make a strong association between the command (cue) and the action that will get them the reward.

If another dog or other distracting thing comes too close to you for your dog to ignore, either wait until it's past again and the dog turns her attention back to you, or move a few feet away, backwards. In addition to these exercises, be sure to mark and reward your dog for looking at you at any time during the day.

Day Five

Go back again, do a one-minute round of rewarding attention at the place you were successful at before, and continue moving closer a few feet. Again, add the dog's name if you can, and move calmly away from distractions if they get too overwhelming. Continue to mark and reward your dog for looking at you at any time during the day.

Day Six

Reward your dog for paying attention to you at a distance from the distractions. Move a little closer, allow your dog to notice the distraction, and immediately call her name and move backwards excitedly. As soon as she turns towards you, click and treat. Reward her several more times for looking at you at that distance from the distraction. Praise her, and start to move back towards the distraction. Allow her to notice the distraction and again call her to you while moving backwards. Repeat this as many times as you can in five minutes.

Please note that you should not use someone else calling her name as a distraction!

Day Seven

Go to your distracting place. Charge up her attention by rewarding it at a distance from the distractions. Move closer to the distractions, allow her to become interested in them for a moment, then call her name and move backwards away from the distractions.
